Opportunity

The CCRF invites applications for the role of Student or Recent Graduate Representative to serve on our Fundraising Committee (FC).

Role Overview

With the full support of CCRF staff, this representative will motivate younger audiences to support evidence-based research through the various initiatives of the FC. This will include idea generation, outreach to potential donors, stewardship and information exchange with chiropractic students and new grads.

Benefits

Serving on this committee will provide hands-on experience with grant administration (e.g., funding models, emerging areas of study, new partnerships) and fundraising (e.g., peer-to-peer, third party platforms, recurring, legacy). These insights will allow members to boost their leadership profile, establish and/or deepen professional relationships and expand their networks. Participants can also sharpen skills in areas like workflow, decision-making and social media promotion.

The ideal candidate is a dynamic relationship builder and influencer who's avidly interested in representing and motivating younger audiences to support national research. An advocate for youth engagement and social responsibility, this person is ready to activate CCRF campaigns to grow our funding base in support of Canada's chiropractic research community. The role requires a time commitment of approx. 2 hours per week, a quarterly video conference and an annual strategy meeting.

Committee Overview

The FC builds relationships with individual donors to champion revenue generation through professional engagement. Specifically, this volunteer led team focuses on legacy, recurring and event-inspired giving, in addition to maintaining excellent relations with national and provincial associations.

Responsibilities

- Acts as a motivational ambassador for national research, communicating the value of CCRF's role
- Participates actively in campaigns, generating revenue and awareness to increase CCRF's profile
- Fosters great relationships with Canadian and international leaders in the chiropractic profession

Qualifications

- Success initiating exciting projects or initiatives with collaborative or fundraising components
- An enthusiastic team player with collegial relationships in the chiropractic community
- A confident and welcoming communicator who is at ease meeting new people

About CCRF

The CCRF is a registered Canadian charity. We invest in national evidence-based research to provide solutions to improve the health of those burdened with musculoskeletal pain and disability.
